

THE ANSWER
HOLICS
HANDBOOK OF RULES
AND REGULATIONS

Explains
WHY YOU WERE DENIED ENTRY INTO THE YAA

Written by Sam I. © 2007

© 2007 Yahoo! Answerholics Anonymous

Yahoo! Answerholics Anonymous – Handbook of Rules and Regulations

Hi there,

Thank you for your interest in the Yahoo! Answerholics Anonymous (YAA) group! Sorry though, but you have received this notice from a moderator of the Yahoo! Answerholics Anonymous because you have been denied access into the group. Don't take it too harshly though, but the reason you were probably denied was because your entry to join the group was incomplete, or it did not adhere to the standards and rules laid down by the group moderators.

Below are listed some of the reasons why you were denied from entering the group:

- a) You were probably denied because you wished to join this group to ask or answer questions. Just so you know - this group is not a Question or Answers group. Period. This group is a group for Answerholics – in short, people who are addicted to answering questions for a website called Yahoo! Answers (which can be found at <http://answers.yahoo.com>) If you would like to answer questions or receive answers to a question that you might have, head over to Yahoo! Answers and get started! :)
- b) The content in your form might not adhere to our standards and regulations. We for one do not allow any new members with forms stating / expressing their private info, or personal interests to join this group (especially if your interests do not include Yahoo! Answers). Members of the public who solely seek friendship, sexual solicitation are definitely denied access. Remember, this is a group for Answerholics (again, people who are interested in Yahoo! Answers), and if your interests include basketball, or making new friends – leave that out for the moment, and try to explain more about your addiction / interest in Yahoo! Answers. We are only interested in members who are interested in Yahoo! Answers.
- c) Your form is incomplete. We also do not allow members of the public who send in their admission forms without explaining a proper reason they would want to join the YAA. Forms that are rejected are as follows:
 - i. You write: asdihasifhsiahfi as the reason you want to join the YAA.
 - ii. Or, you write: Good, I want join – or – let me in.

Really. We would love to let you in – but if you don't explain to us and let us know how addicted or interested you really are in Yahoo! Answers – you do not qualify to be in the group.

Yahoo! Answerholics Anonymous – Handbook of Rules and Regulations

So that aside, let's look back at the stated guidelines to sending a proper admission ticket.

1. Click the button that says: "Join this group." Fill in your info and what-not.
2. Do include the keyword YAHOO! ANSWERS as this helps us distinguish those who really understand what YA is from those who just want to get into the group to answer and ask. Again, if you are looking forward to come in to ask and answer – this is NOT the place. Go to <http://answers.yahoo.com> instead.
3. When you come to the point that you have to talk about yourself and why you want to join the group, write about yourself in the BEST way possible. Please make your reason for joining as complete as possible as we base admittance into the group upon your comments. (NOTE: Any persons who don't type in English or those that post sexual comments on the admission form won't be allowed into the group. This group is for people interested in Yahoo Answers ONLY!)
4. Lastly, confess and say: "My name is ----, and I'm an Answerholic!"

So following the guidelines, you can start off by stating more about your Yahoo! Answers experience in the ticket. This helps us distinguish your interest, and separates those who intend on joining the group for other purposes. You can then either state your alias or level on Yahoo! Answers – before finishing up with your real name / nickname (the one that we'll call you by) and saying: "I'm an Answerholic!"

Trust us, if we see that – we'll immediately let you in. It's the many entries of people who do not have an interest in Yahoo! Answers or those who have other interests like sexual solicitation or more that creates quite a bit of stir in our peaceful community (it's also hard for us moderators, modding the group). So if everyone plays nice and by the rules – it'll not only be easier for us, but easier for you too – we'll let you right in. :D

So don't let this letter get you down, feel free to reapply. :) Just remember, it's those with the interest in Yahoo! Answers we want – and if you feel that you're an Answerholic, then join us!

Sam I.

Yahoo! Answerholics Anonymous Vice President