

This paper provides a brief review, of some international experiences in restructuring electrical utilities. It gives of restructuring experiences in a dozen countries, some at advanced stages, and others just starting. The discussion will generally focus on status before change, date of change, motivation, action taken, and results. The study cases will highlight success and failures of deregulation experiences. The paper will present current reform status in Kingdom of Saudi Arabia electricity sector.